DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of the species of Fig 6 and claims 11-15 in the reply filed on 2/18/05 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Priority

The current status of application number 09/964,836 as –now abandoned—must be included in the first paragraph of the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lipkovker (USPN 5,421,816). Lipkovker discloses an ultrasonic transdermal drug delivery system that includes a housing (81), a compartment (67), an oscillating member (65), a medicament port (69), and a sensor (71). The oscillating member is adapted to oscillate in response to ultrasonic stimulation since member 65 is a piezoelectric transducer. Since the port is a separate component, it can be removed and replaced and therefore is adapted to permit a medicament to be introduced into and contained. Since the port is a membrane, it is adapted to selectively release the medicament from the compartment. The sensor is adapted to receive temperature information and is electrically connected to the control (63). Since the sensor is electrically connected to the control (63) the sensor is adapted to communicate and selectively energize any electrical component including a means for selectively generating and transmitting ultrasonic vibrations. The control (63) is considered a means for calculating the duration of the ultrasonic vibrations.

Regarding the claim limitations of “means for selectively generating and transmitting ultrasonic vibrations” (claims 12 and 15) and “means for calculating the duration of the ultrasonic frequency”, it is assumed that applicant is invoking 12 6th paragraph. These limitations have been interpreted as means plus function recitations. Based in the instant specification the “means for selectively generating and transmitting ultrasonic vibration” is any structure or mechanism for generating and transmitting ultrasonic vibrations, e.g. a piezoelectric crystal, since the specification does not set forth any further description of the means. Additionally, the “means for calculating” has been interpreted in the same way and is considered any structure or mechanism for calculating, e.g. a processor, since the specification does not set forth any further description of the means.

Claims 11-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Currie et al (USPN 5,366,454). Currie discloses an implantable medication dispensing device that includes a housing (12), a compartment (16), an oscillating member (24), a medicament port (20), and a sensor (see 4:57-64). Since the port is a separate component, it can be removed and replaced and therefore is adapted to permit a medicament to be introduced into and contained. The device includes a means for generating and transmitting an ultrasonic vibrations (34,32,36). The device includes a circuit (58) which is the means for calculating.
